

Firenock Review by Michael Homan, June 17, 2008 on ArcheryTalk.com
Lightning Nock GSH (GS)

I just tried out some new [L]ightning Nock "LG" [G] Series Standard Hunting nocks at a target shoot tonight and must admit that I was quite impressed. The nocks came well packaged with an excellent instruction sheet for assembly. The nock lit up as it should on arrow release and was easily visible in flight and VERY bright in the target at 20 yds in an very well lit room. The nock was easy to shut off by dropping the arrow end first from 6-8" on a hardwood floor. Out of the pack of three, I installed a nock on one of my target arrows for testing purposes and the other two on my hunting arrows. I won't get an opportunity to test them in the field until October, but I can't see any reason why the performance shouldn't be the same. They should be a real asset when letting loose an arrow at an elusive whitetail. Get some, I think that you will like them.

Michael Homan
Team Talon/Pro Staff Manager