Firenock GS

Last season was my first season using one of the Firenock products. I used the Lightning Nock, and all I can say was that it blew both me and my friends away! I was lucky enough to catch my first video harvest of a deer on camera, so many people(including 1000's at Archerytalk.com) were able to see the nock do its job. I received so many positive responses concerning the nock, I knew I had a keeper.

Well this year brought some changes to Firenock and I couldn't wait to test out and shoot the new nocks. The "S" nock fit perfectly in my Beman ICS Hunter arrows and was a snap to install. I couldn't imagine anything working better than the Lightning nock from last year, but man was I wrong! These nocks are BRIGHT! I have yet to sling one through a deer, but countless shots into the target have proven to me that once again, Dorge has a high quality product here. The best thing about these nocks is that they don't seem to change where my arrows hit, compared to my normal nocks.

After seeing my video from last season, my closest buddy told his girlfriend he wanted Firenocks for Christmas last year. Unfortunately, she bought some Tracer nocks instead. When we both installed our nocks for the first time this summer, mine worked flawlessly, while two of the three he had were not working. Mine were VISIBLY brighter than his. Unfortunately(or fortunately, depending on how you look at it), he had to return his nocks and he too bought the new Firenocks. He absolutely loves them.

Some people may complain about the price, but I am here to tell you that price should not be a factor. We all buy the best bows, best arrows, best sights, and best broad heads, regardless of the price. Shouldn't we have the BEST lighted nock to compliment all the rest of our equipment???
