

Firenock Review update by David marcum, 22th January, 2009
Firenock ST

Here a little review on what I'm seeing at the 3d shoots that I have gone to the past month.

To get up there and settle in on a target and release the arrow, right out of the bow you see a red light going down range going right for the 11 ring. You feel really good about yourself when you see your nock glowing where you aimed with your sight. I have learned over the past month shooting the target model Firenocks that after I make the shot; good or bad, I can see where I already hit. And if it was a bad shot I can already talk to myself and calm myself down. By the time I even go look at where I hit.

I have never been able to do so before. In the past I never knew where I hit before and when i get up to pull my arrows and see it was a bad shot. I'm thinking about it even at the next target. Just a little bit of advantage for myself to get calmed down after making a shot that was not the best.

David Marcum
Columbus, OH