

Firenock Review by Michael Ward, 11th August 2009
Firenock GS

I have shot firenock for three years now with great results. I did have a problem on my first pack, when trying to install batteries. I broke one but when I called Dorge he took very good care of me. He has great customer service and stands behind what he sells. When I shoot with my friends that have other brands during daylight, we noticed how much brighter firenock was compared to some of theirs. We also noticed how much problems my friends have with theirs not working right. To be honest at first i thought they were a little expensive but they are well worth it, you get what you pay for. I think the price is why my friends bought other brands but in the long run they spend way more than i did.
